Course Calendar

- I reserve the right to change the course calendar (including changing a screening or reading) as the course evolves.
- Please note that some of the screenings contain violence, sex, and depictions of racism and sexism. Before committing to this course, look through the following readings and screenings to make sure you are comfortable with the course material.
- Readings are all linked from the syllabus below or in They Say, I Say CAT Edition (TSIS on the syllabus), which you can purchase from the bookstore. All the required TV shows are either linked below or available to stream through UCSD Library’s Course Reserves. You log in with your active directory.

Week 1: Reading TV
Key Terms: Genre & Medium/Mode, Form and Content, Ideology

Monday: Televising America (A Super Fast Overview History)
TSIS, Ch. 9 “Academic writing doesn’t mean you can’t use your own voice”

Wednesday: Why Television? What is television?
Read: Marshall McLuhan, “Medium is the Message” & Stuart Hall, “Encoding/Decoding

Friday: Formal Analysis 101
Read: Corrigan (on Formal Analysis)
Recommended: “How to Mark a book”

Watch: Father Knows Best (1954) & Mad Men (“Smoke Gets in Your Eyes”) (Course reserves)

Reflection #1 (& Weekly Annotation 1): Annotate EITHER McLuhan OR Hall. Then, from the section you annotated, pull a quote that stood out to you. For this response, you will summarize and analyze the quote. You might discuss how it relates to the course and/or why it was interesting to you. Your response should follow this order and be ONE paragraph: Topic Sentence, example (your quote), analysis of the quote (200-300 words). Please make sure you read the full directions linked above.

Week 2: American National Television Systems
Key Terms: Discipline/Interdisciplinarity, Nations/National Medium

Monday: MLK Day (No class)

Wednesday: Watch: I Love Lucy (course reserves)
Read: Jeremy Butler, “An Introduction to Television Structures and Systems”
Note: our parameters--primetime (vs. daytime) and local v. national

Friday: What is a nation, anyway?
Read: Omi & Winant, “On Nations” & Ch. 4 “Three ways to respond” & Ch. 7 “Saying why it matters”
Recommended: Benedict Anderson, Imagined Communities (excerpt)
Reflection #2 (& Weekly Annotation 2): Annotate the first few pages (like 1-3) of either Butler OR Omi & Winant–one of your annotations should summarize what you see as the argument (i.e. make note and put in your own words the argument).

For your response, you will choose ONE sequence OR SHOT from one of the screenings so far (Week 1 or 2) and then do a close reading. Your paragraph should begin with a topic sentence that makes an argument, followed by an example from your sequence, followed by analysis of your sequence. The last sentence ideally makes a connection between your argument and one of the readings from this week.

Week 3: One nation under television (1950s)
Key Terms: Suburbs, Redlining, Civil Rights & TV Coverage

Monday: What is a nation, anyway? (Make-up from Friday)
   Recommended: Carol Stabile, “The Typhoid Mary’s of the Left: Gender, Race, and the Broadcast Blacklist” (Course Reserves)
